

ABSTRACT

A method and system for comparing a registered location of a fixed wireless device to the current location of the fixed wireless device and responsively activating an alert if the registered location does not match the current location. The comparing and activating functions may take place at the fixed wireless device or in a wireless network. A variety of alerts are available to prompt a user of the fixed wireless device to update the registered location to the current location.